

OSP AUDITS AND QUALITY CONTROL

Standards and specifications don't always make it from the drawing board to your plant as intended. Without third-party verification, even the highest quality contractors can fall short of your goals. An established system of checks and balances ensures that any potential issues are identified and addressed. Tracking records provide accountability while allowing you to analyze and address your contractors. Our customized reporting systems provide real-time access to updates so you can trust your contractors and the quality is assured.

PRG's attention to detail will make sure that your specifications are met and restoration is completed, giving you confidence in your customer handoff. We believe in a common sense, cost-effective approach to quality assurance that analyzes the process from end to end. Let us customize a quality control plan for your business today.
